

GAGGENAU

Media Release
May 2009

The Chaîne International Young Commis Chef of the Year Competition in association with Gaggenau Wednesday June 3rd 2009

Next month sees the national final of the Chaîne Young Commis Chef Competition held this year at Le Cordon Bleu cookery school, London.

Now in its 34th year, this prestigious competition, organised by the international gastronomic society Chaîne des Rôtisseurs in association with Gaggenau, will see the country's leading young commis chefs competing for the title of Great Britain's Young Commis Chef of the Year under the scrutiny of a high-profile panel of judges - all chefs of international repute.

Philip Evins, Head of Chaîne des Rôtisseurs in Great Britain says: "The Chaîne believes very strongly that the encouragement and training of young professionals is absolutely key to ensuring future standards and the ability for them to measure their progress against their peers gives them great feedback."

The exhilarating competition has been designed to test the young commis chefs' culinary knowledge, originality and skill whilst leaving them the freedom to express their ideas by menu balance, flair, technique and that all important ability to 'think-on-your-feet'. All candidates must be under 27 years of age to compete, representing the crème of the industry's young talent.

Gaggenau continues its partnership of the competition this year, sharing Chaîne des Rôtisseurs' commitment to encouraging the aspirations of young professionals and nurturing young talent. "We're here to support the future of these up-and-coming chefs and share in their passion to push boundaries within the kitchen and cuisine arena so partnering with the Chaîne on this initiative is a natural fit." says Helen Shaw, Marketing Manager of Gaggenau.

Each contestant is given an identical, previously undisclosed 'market basket' containing basic ingredients. Using these ingredients, plus a variety of staple ingredients from the pantry, contestants have just three and a half hours to compose and execute a three-course menu for four covers.

The panel of judges, headed by Lesley Gray, Conseiller Culinaire and Principal of Le Cordon Bleu, includes Anton Mosimann and Anthony Marshall (a former winner of the competition himself, 30 years ago). They will assess competitors on a 0-10 points system for taste, presentation and originality.

For further details please contact: Camilla Jones/Ciara Phillips at Murray Weir Willats
Tel: 020 7245 1066 Email camilla@murrayweirwillats.com/ciara@murrayweirwillats.com

GAGGENAU

To ensure total impartiality, a strict blind judging procedure is adopted whereby at no time will the judges come into contact with the competitors, who are identified by their kitchen station numbers only.

All competitors taking part in the final will be awarded the Chaîne des Rôtisseurs (GB) Young Commis Chef Competition Gold Medal. The winner will fly to New York in October to represent Great Britain at the international heat of the competition competing against other winners of national finals in countries across the globe to win the title of Chaîne des Rôtisseurs International Young Commis Chef 2009 and professional entry into the society.

For further details please contact:
Camilla Jones/Ciara Phillips at Murray Weir Willats
4a William St, London SW1X 9HL
Tel: 020 7245 1066
Email: camilla@murrayweirwillays.com/ciara@murrayweirwillats.com

GAGGENAU

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

The Young Commis Chef Competition

The Young Commis Competition was first organised by Chaîne des Rôtisseurs in Switzerland in 1977, to support and promote future young chefs by giving them the opportunity to demonstrate their skills. Competitions are held at regional, national and international level.

Commis Chefs applying to enter the competition must be under 27 years of age and must be a citizen of Great Britain either by birth or naturalization. The young chefs are nominated by their employer who must be a member of Chaîne des Rôtisseurs, and accepted by the competition committee. Commis chefs must also be employed full time by a Maître or Chef member in good standing of Chaîne des Rôtisseurs.

Chaîne des Rôtisseurs

Chaîne des Rôtisseurs is an international gastronomic society. Founded in Paris in 1950, the society is dedicated to bringing together professional and non-professional members from around the world who appreciate wine cuisine and fine dining.

Its long culinary history and tradition can be dated back to as far as 1248 and continues to be promoted today through its extensive local, national and international events. In an age of fast food culture, the Chaîne aims to sustain the appreciation of high quality food and drinks of all types and provide recognition for excellence.

The Young Comis Chef Competition is just one of a calendar of world-renowned events hosted and promoted by Chaîne des Rôtisseurs to encourage the aspirations of young professionals and provides a platform for them to compete with their peers. The Chaîne provides a network across 70 countries where the spirit of camaraderie helps and welcomes traveling members.

Gaggenau

Gaggenau brings the professional kitchen into the home and uses the highest quality materials for built-in kitchen appliances combining uncompromising performance and design. Working alongside both professional chefs and product designers, Gaggenau's researchers and developers have consistently been at the forefront of the industry, launching technically innovative appliances and achieving a number of 'firsts': the world's first built in oven; first glass ceramic cook top; first pyrolytic self cleaning oven system and combination steam oven for domestic use.

Gaggenau is associated with fine wine and dining as well as the support, nurturing and development of some of Europe's finest chefs. Michelin starred chef, Raymond Blanc, has selected Gaggenau appliances for the working kitchen in his world-renowned cookery school, Le Manoir aux Quat' Saisons found near Oxford.

Gaggenau's expertise offers professional standard appliances in all categories of kitchen appliances to ensure perfect storage of ingredients and food quality: stainless steel lined refrigeration, steam combination ovens, ventilation solutions and dishwashers all form part of Gaggenau's comprehensive product range.

For details of the full product line-up please visit www.gaggenau.com.

For further details please contact: Camilla Jones/Ciara Phillips at Murray Weir Willats
Tel: 020 7245 1066 Email camilla@murrayweirwillats.com/ciara@murrayweirwillats.com

GAGGENAU

The Chaîne International Young Commis Chef of the Year Competition Judges Profiles

Anton Edelmann, Maître Rotisseur, La Chaîne des Rotisseurs

Anton Edelmann is renowned for having been the Savoy hotel's maître chef des cuisines for 21 years, between 1982 and 2003. Born in Germany, Anton served an apprenticeship in Germany before moving to London to the Savoy Hotel. He then worked at the Dorchester hotel under Anton Mosimann as well as Grosvenor House before returning to the Savoy Hotel. In his 21 years Anton was hugely influential, introducing modern European cooking with a strong French influence. In 2003 Anton left the Savoy to become a principal chef at the Director's Table, the fine dining division of Sodexo and Patron Chef at London's Allium restaurant. Last year he opened a spectacular 80-seat restaurant at the Great Hallingbury Manor near Bishops Stortford, Hertfordshire. Anton is a renowned chef and TV personality and author.

Lesley Gray, Principal, Le Cordon Bleu Cookery School, Conseiller Culinaire, Chaîne des Rôtisseurs

Anthony Marshall, Executive Chef, London Hilton on Park Lane

Over the last 13 years, Anthony Marshall has been executive chef at the London Hilton on Park Lane. Anthony has been responsible for overseeing major banquets including the Royal Warrant Holders' Lunch, held to commemorate the Queen's Golden Jubilee in 2002. Gaining enormous recognition in both the industry and customers Anthony was named Best Banqueting Chef by the Craft Guild of Chefs in 2002 and is in charge of the largest banqueting facility on Park Lane which can cater for more than 1000 people for lunch and dinner in one day. Despite his huge role, Anthony still continues to have an innovative approach to cooking and is constantly pushing the banqueting boundaries.

Anton Mosimann OBE, Commandeur, Maître Rôtisseur, Chaîne des Rôtisseurs

Anton Mosimann started his apprenticeship at a local Swiss hotel at the age of 15, and at the age of 25 became one of the youngest Chefs to receive the coveted Chef de Cuisine Diploma. He worked and traveled extensively, gaining international acclaim in Italy, Canada and Japan. In 1975 Anton joined London's Dorchester Hotel where, at the age of 28, he became the youngest ever Maître Chef de Cuisine. He stayed at the Dorchester for 13 years and with his skill and energy brought the hotel two Michelin stars. In April 1988 Anton Mosimann left to establish his own exclusive members dining club, Mosimann's. In 2004 Anton was awarded the OBE for service to the industry and in 2006 was made an Officer of the French National Order of Merit for distinguished services.

Andrew Turner, Executive Chef, Langham Hotel

Once Andrew left catering college, he began his training in France. Following his return to the UK, he went on to work with well-known chefs including Anton Edelmann. Having learned from the best, Andrew went on to develop the contemporary European 'grazing concept', which allows diners to sample up to ten smaller dishes rather than a traditional three-course meal. He has won many awards, including Time Out Restaurant of the Year 2001 at the restaurant 1827 at Browns Hotel in London, Voyager restaurant of the year 2001-2004 and a 4-rosette AA rating. Andrew was executive head chef at 1880 at the Bentley Hotel in London. He was until recently executive head chef at Pennyhill Park Hotel in Surrey. Now Andrew is executive chef of the Landau, the new dining destination at the recently refurbished Langham Hotel in London. Andrew has also appeared on many food television programmes.

For further details please contact: Camilla Jones/Ciara Phillips at Murray Weir Willats
Tel: 020 7245 1066 Email camilla@murrayweirwillats.com/ciara@murrayweirwillats.com